Understanding Dogs' Feelings

These days, many people think of dogs as their family. So, it is good to know their feelings. But how? The dogs can't say anything, but their faces and bodies can tell people about their feelings. Here's what you need to know.

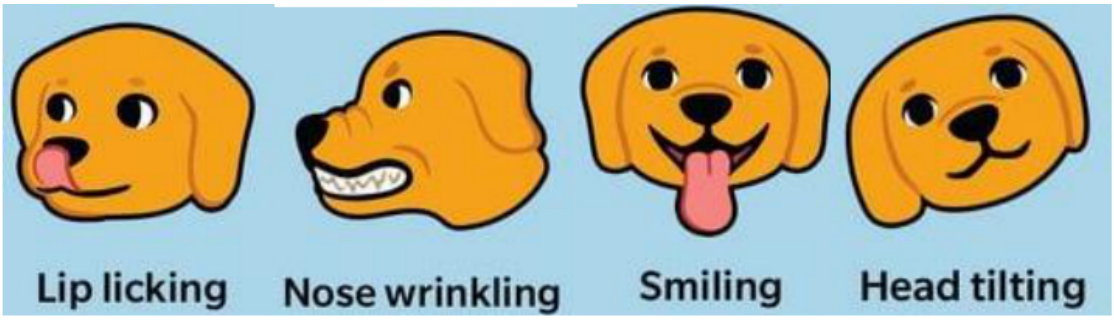

Lip licking: It is a sign of stress or not having enough water.

Nose wrinkling: It means that dogs are not happy.

Smiling: When dogs are happy, they smile with a soft eye and ears to the side.

Head tilting: Dogs do this when they want to know what a person says.

By knowing dogs' feelings, people can get close to their dogs and stop bad things from happening, too.
